

Reading/Writing Specialist

Jeremy Whittaker is a proud native of Memphis, TN where he graduated from Christian Brothers High School. While balancing the life and responsibility of being a college student athlete, Jeremy attained a Bachelor's of Business Administration with emphasis in Organizational Management and a minor in Finance from Southern Arkansas University. Following an appointed internship with the United States Department of Education, Jeremy also attained a Master's of Education (M.Ed) in Higher Education Leadership/Student Affairs and a Master's of Business Administration (MBA) from University of Arkansas-Little Rock.

At UALR, he is credited for his work as a Program Coordinator, First Year Experience professor, and collaborative efforts with the Winthrop Rockefeller Foundation for the implementation and success of the African-American Male Initiative (AAMI) program. Most recently, Jeremy has served in the role of Regional Campus Director at the Cambridge College Tennessee Regional Campus. Additionally, he also dedicates his efforts to enriching the lives of marginalized populations through the non-profit foundation "ABC's of Life, Inc." as well as the University of Memphis in

FORGOTTEN WHAT
ONE HAS LEARNED
IN SCHOOL.
~ALBERT EINSTEIN

Mr. Whittaker also enjoys being an adjunct faculty member of LeMoyne-Owen College within the Division of First Year Experience. He is a member of the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators (NASPA) in which he has enjoyed the pleasure of conducting workshops at a multitude of institutions nationally and truly believes that engagement is inextricably bound to learning. He states "students who feel that they truly matter to an institution are much more likely to be retained, persist, and ultimately graduate. Therefore we must ensure the necessary resources are accessible to assist in this effort." Jeremy is currently pursuing his doctorate (Ph.D.)
